MAN OF MANY TALENTS

A professor of Latin is not apt to be regarded as of much use in other activities. But anyone holding this opinion did not know the late James C. Egbert, connected with Columbia University for 65 years. While working his way up in the department of Greek and Latin, Prof. Egbert found time to serve on the Jersey City Board of Education, and to play a large part in establishing the merit system in the city schools.

His university soon made use of his executive talents. As director of the summer session, he raised the number of students, in his 18 years of service, from 543 to 9,539. He had charge of university extension for 32 years. He directed the school of business for 15 years. He organized the Columbia school of dentistry. He even went outside of the university to act as president of the Long Island College Hospital for 13 years.

Such a gifted executive must have had many lucrative offers from the business world, which his devotion to Columbia kept him from accepting. His career is a reminder that the college world contains many talented men who could be used to great advantage in other fields. Governmental service is one. And yet unthinking citizens and people with an ax to grind raise an outcry whenever a professor is appointed to

JIMPS

"There's a Jimp Round Every Corner." "Don't Be a Jimp!" From these and other signs distributed by the British Ministry of Transport, it is plain that in addition to their other troubles the British have jimps.

Jimps are traffic hazards, the name coming from "jinx" plus "imp". They belong to the gremlin family. They are the little teasers who distract you into pulling out from the curb without signaling, or crashing a red light. Every country has them, if so far only the British have publicized them.

THE GURU LETTERS

You can say that the Guru letters are unimportant and that Westbrook Pegler has made much of an imbecility. For months I have heard people say that they are tired of reading about the Guru in Pegler's column and that he ought to put on a new record.

Well, that is a matter of taste, and my taste talling the truth even if it is unly and

That stuff can be got from the press agents of the notorious. Most reporters and columnists undertake tough and often grueling assignments to get the facts to their readers which they cannot always do because skillful politicians and lawyers have discovered ways of keeping the truth undercover, and sentimental and unrealistic judges hand down decisions which aid the evil.

Now Pegler did not invent the Guru letters. Now Pegler did not invent the Guru letters. They have been around a long time and have passed through many hands. Whoever wrote those letters was undoubtedly unbalanced emotionally and, finding himself in an esoteric mociety of Oriental cultists, he fell for the teric society of Oriental cultists, he fell for the stuff.

I, myself, once visited Roerich. I had known his relatives in Mongolia and North China. Having had some experience with Oriental cultists, it did not take me more than one evening to discover that Roerich was largely pretense. His paintings were interesting and he possessed considerable knowledge of Asiatic religions. But I had met, in my days in Asia, dozens of men and women who were his peers in knowledge. So I passed him by.

By his refusal, in the circumstances of the Philadelphia press interview, to admit or deny that he wrote them, Henry Wallace had removed from my mind the susplcion that there could be any other author. When H. L. Mencken put it to Wallace straight, Wallace could not stand on his dignity that he would not speak to Pegler or to a Pegler stooge, for Mencken is not Pegler nor a Pegler stooge, but a journalist well on in years whose career warrants that he be treated with courtesy and respect.

stooge, but a journalist well on in years whose career warrants that he be treated with courtesy and respect.

Walace, it is true, did not admit that he wrote those letters, but his conduct gave the impression that he might have written them, and that if he was their author in his earlier years, age and experience have changed him not at all.

Now the Guru letters are not very important and I am sure that even Pegier will admit that they are not to be measured against our problems in Berlin. But if Wallace is their author, which he did not deny under such favorable circumstances, then we need to study this psychopathic movement called the Progressive Party. It is not like the Bull Moose Progressives nor like the La Follette Progressives. It is more like Hitler's Munich days; it is a weird collection of the maladjusted.

Too rendily do we say: "They can't get many votes. Why give them so much notice?" But the whole story is not in votes. A party of the warped, the distorted, the maladjusted, the neurotic is a party capable of disturbing the peace of this nation and in the hands of skillful, operators, like Lee Prossman, John Abt, and Vito Marcantonio, it can become a fearful menace. Henry Wallace, Guru or not, is a stooge of these skilled technicians who feed his ego and his undoubted sense of being misunderstood and persecuted. True, Roosevell treated him shabbily and got rid of him, as did Truman. But his passion for power, his certainty of his own superiority drives him forward and under circumstances that would have eliminated other men, he not only survives but thrives.

Roerich was a bit of a charlatan. So Wallace got tied up with esoteric nonsense. But now he is imprisoned by the Communist Party, not of the United States but of the world. He has become their thing and neither he nor Westbrook Pegler can prevent him from doing the United States great mischief. Who can know what madness will come of all this? KINGSTON POST WINS THIRD DISTRICT TITLE

H. Levy Shuts Out Albany Colonials and Stamford Divide Four Games With Six Safeties, 7 to 0

Kingston Post captured the Third District American Legion Junior baseball title last night by routing Vandeloo-Miller Post of Albany, 7 to 0, before slightly more than 100 fans at municipal

The Old Capitals won because the downtown section, a hotbed of baseball stars of yesteryear, is still producing eager youngsters who can play the game-

The victory qualified the Kingston tossers for the regional tournament in Gloversville, where they meet Mechanicville Post. If they survive that competition they go to the state finals at Cooperstown, N. Y.

Levy Big Hero

The boys from the downtown section—Henny Levy and Joe. Norton-wore the heroes' garland along with young Rod Whitaker of Saugerties. Levy showed uncanny courage in the clutches. Whitaker drove in three runs, while young Norton sup-plied a triple, two runs and one of the most amazing catches ever nine.

Levy wound up the contest in a flourish of strikeouts that would have warmed the cockles of the heart of the most grizzled baseball observer. In the sixth inning he walked the first batter, the next one singled and he wild pitched both to second and third with nobody out. Then he bore down to fan two batters and snuff the third on a harmless grounder the third on a harmless grounder to Ronnie Scheffel.

Levanites, Albany third sacker, whistled a low liner to right contemporarie Bud Scheffel collared for first out in the fifth. After ketres tapped to the box, Nor-ton pulled the fielding play of the season. Rourke sliced a low sinking liner to Norton's left. The latter came tearing in, bent over with one swooping motion picked the sizzling drive off his shoetops with his gloved hand.

Citick shilled on Kingston in the flust efter Levy had fanned the third man with the bases loaded in Affany's first. Walks to Ronnie Scheffel, Bud Scheffel and Mike Rietzo and a fielder's choice loaded the sacks with one out layes, faaned Jim Riehl and had Bo Schaffer struck out when catcher Skgroi let the ball squirt out of his hands and roll back of the plate. Norton scored and all hands were safe. Rod Whitaker then delified a two run single over second. Further damage was aperied when first baseman. Stolen Bases—Ashburn, Phila-Cuck stdiled on Kingston in the then driffled a two run single over second. Further damage was averted when first baseman Roucke made a one-handed stab of "Mollie" Leonard's smash over first base. Richl's single, Schaffer's walk, a stolen, base and wild pitch put runners on second and third with nobody out in the Kingston third.

nobody out in the Kingston third. Whitaker's fly to center was deep enough to score Riehl and Schaffer crossed on a wild pitch for a 5-B lead.

Norton's triple to deep right center and Bud Scheffel's long fly midde it 6-0 in the sixth. A double by Riehl on a misjudged fly and an infield out accounted for the final run in the seventh.

Bagatelles:

The storm warnings went up in Poughkeepsie last week, and if the attendance drought continues in the Queen City, the future of the Colonial Baseball League will be imperilled. Lou Baselice, presibruising brawls had only a Mexi- dent and owner of the league-leading Poughkeepsie Chiefs, expressed can standoff to show for their complete disappointment in the attendance at Riverview Field games this year.

Mr. Baselice doesn't have to worry about the wolf, personally. He coins a mint of dough in the salvage business. Baseball is a hobby with the tall New Yorker but nobody likes to invest good money in a questionable venture interminably. Not even a salvage Baselice's statement that the Chiefs, despite their league lead and power hitting, have averaged ONLY 682 per game this year comes as a distinct shockeroo. This is a pitiful record considering the vast fan potential in the Dutchess area, the heavy male industries and the general affluence of the Bridge City. And a pennant winner, too.

• Disappointed . . . With Reason:

"Frankly," says Baselice, "I am a little discouraged in my florts to give Poughkeepsie and vicinity a winning professional

"Last year," continued the owner, "we started playing night ball on July 17 and we drew 45,000 paid admissions between then and the close of the season. We confidently expected to draw a minimum of 75,000 this year to break even. Unless we meet this figure in the remaining 23 games, I will be forced to the reluctant conclusion that Poughkeepsle will not support a professional baseball team..."

is purely a social note.

Harry Petty and Dan Rourke notched Saturday's victories, although Petty needed help from "High Harry" Bedell. The Colonial League will fold up, if Lou Baselice pulls up stakes. Bus John Scalzi's circuit will suffer a body blow. Poughkeepsie, with Basenials staked him to a 6-1 lead but the Pioneers tallied twice in the league but the bad news out of Poughkeepsie shrouds the future in

• Poughkeepsie Is Needed:

Montalbo, c ... 4 Estes, p 2

A Colonial League without Poughkeepsle would weaken the Kingston franchise. Make no mistake about that. Kingstonians have proved by a sensational 1420 game average that they like Class B baseball, despite a fifth place club. But take Poughkeepsle out of the circuit and it could be a different story.

The sudden collapse of fan interest in Poughkeepsle is amazing when you consider the high power promotional staff and outstanding ball club. They have a topflight executive in "Gabe" Mauro and a high powered public relations staff. They have attempted desperately to stimulate attendance by artificial means by jackpots, bank quizzes, novelty attractions, and other stunts. But the fans have stayed away . . . in droves.

The parallel between Foughkeepsle 1948 and Kingston 1947 is deadly. Kingston refused to support a championship Class D franchise last year. Local fans, who stayed away en masse in '47, are enthusiastic levelopments, however, we think it must have been one of those day when we consumed an overdose of root beer.

We sincerely hope the Poughkeepsie fans rally to the support of the Chiefs and heed Basellee's warning. But we have serious misgivings. The miserable attendance at the All Star game, the comparatively slim crowd for the two Kingston appearances at Riverview were the clinchers. Maybe the Bridge City fans want to be left alone.

Strike Is Called Off

New York, Aug. 2 1/29—Strike aution against F. W. Woolworth Co. retail stores in the New York area, threatened for today by a C.I.O. Wholesale and Warehouse Workers Union Local, has been called off. Arthur Osman, presi the union's New Local 45, gave no reason for his action in announcing yesterday that the strike would be post-poned indefinitely. Osman had threatened the strike after say-ing that picket lines had been established around an estimated 200 Woolworth stores in the United States, Canada and Cuba. The stores were picketed, he said, because the Woolworth firm re-was telling us some incidents in connection with his new program on the Mutual network entitled "Life Begins at Eighty."

When we finished playing the hand shown today, I told Jack he had bid it like one of the seven-year-olds on his "Juvenile Jury" show. But I think you will agree that he played it like one who had had 80 years of experience.

had 80 years of experience.
Of course Jack had no business opening with a two diamond bid, but his comment was that he felt that he was going to be the de-clarer. He was not prepared for mis partner to jump to six diamonds. When the bidding came around again, Jack was the jury and bad to make a decision. The unswer was seven diamonds.

On the opening lead of the king of clubs, he discarded the deuce of spades from dummy and trumped
